

Objectives

The objectives of the project were to quantify the movement of Heliothis adults into cotton crops, to assess the impact of movements on the dynamics of Heliothis populations in cotton, to identify the weather and climatic conditions associated with these movements, and to parameterise the results for incorporation into regional population models.